Organizations having SYS-ED conduct File-AID training will be required to have a licensed version of the software.

This presentation outline, content, examples, sample programs, and workshops for this courseware was developed by David Silverberg. It has been reviewed by David Shapiro.

For purposes of consistency, the term "dataset" is used for defining terms and explaining concepts. The term "data set" used by Computer Associates in screens and menus is used as is. Our research and experience indicates that reference is made to both dataset and data set in the software and its reference manuals.
